Introduction

Changes To The Law

In September 2006, the law on physical punishment was changed. If a parent harms his/her child through physical punishment, the defence of reasonable chastisement will now only be considered if the harm is seen as minor.

Everyone accepts that children must learn right from wrong and develop the ability to get on with others. However, it is important to remember that you do not have a right to physically punish your child and you should, therefore, consider other methods such as positive parenting.

Being a parent is a wonderful thing; however, it’s not always easy. Hopefully, the information in this booklet will show you how you can use techniques to guide, nurture and encourage your child and build your confidence as a parent.

We want our children to behave well, and to:

- have respect for themselves and others;
- be polite to others;
- know how to behave in different situations;
- be able to concentrate and pay attention;
- share and to take turns;
- know how to win and how to lose.

But children often behave quite differently, and we may feel annoyed, frustrated and embarrassed.

This booklet suggests a few ideas to help you with your child’s behaviour.

Parents of teenage children or children with a disability may face additional challenges and pressures, which are not addressed within this booklet. However, details of organisations that may be able to help can be found on the Family Support NI website (see page 18).
Contents

Usual Behaviour  4

What Makes Children Behave In Challenging Ways?  4

Coping Under Pressure  5

Tips for Helping With Children’s Behaviour  6

Tip 1:  Talk and Listen  6

Tip 2:  Play  8

Tip 3:  Understanding Changes As They Grow  9

Tip 4:  Set Boundaries  10

Tip 5:  Reward and Notice Good Behaviour  11

Tip 6:  Build Self Confidence  12

Tip 7:  Have Realistic Expectations and Allow Consequences  13

Tip 8:  Deal With Meltdown Moments Positively  13

Tip 9:  Look After Yourself  16

Tip 10:  When Things Are Getting Difficult  17

Family Support NI Website  18

Comments  21
Top Tips for Parents

Usual Behaviour

Children may:

- have tantrums;
- shout and scream;
- hit siblings, parents, friends;
- not do as they’re told;
- break things, spill things, squash things;
- not listen or concentrate.

This is not unusual. Children are learning what happens when they have a tantrum, hit another child, say rude words.

Children will always push against boundaries. They are checking out what their parents will draw the line at, what they can and can’t do. This helps them understand what is acceptable and what isn’t.

Parents work out their own ways of looking after their children. There is no simple recipe; it takes time for children to learn how to behave, and for parents to work out the best way of getting the best out of their child.

What makes children behave in challenging ways?

Children do not usually misbehave just to upset or annoy their parents. There is often a reason behind a child’s behaviour.

It may be:

- they are upset or anxious about school;
- they feel jealous of their brother or sister;
- they want their parent to listen to them;
- they want their parent to spend time with them.

Behaviour patterns can get stuck. At some point most children will misbehave to get attention. If a parent doesn’t pay much attention when children are behaving well, some children will try ‘acting up’ to get attention, even if it results in a telling off.

Coping Under Pressure

Coping with your child’s misbehaviour can be stressful. Sometimes it can seem like you’re about to reach boiling point.

Parents need to find ways to reduce the pressure in the home and can do a lot to help their child’s behaviour through positive parenting.

In fact, parents can make the difference between their child’s behaviour getting out of control, and helping them manage everyday life in better ways.
Tip 1: Talk and Listen

As we know, all children are unique.

Getting to know your own child, and knowing what makes them angry or agitated can help you prevent angry or upsetting situations before they happen.

Talking and listening to your child helps them to understand what’s going on:

- Language: Try to use positive words. Tell your child what you want them to do, not what you don’t want them to do. Instead of “don’t make such a mess” try “tidy up your toys please”. This is an example of positive parenting.

- Change your tone: Your voice is a powerful tool. Sometimes changing your tone or volume can be enough to stop a fraught situation or get your child to do what you want. This can work equally well with older children. If you react or speak in a completely different manner to which they expected they might be surprised.
Listening: Your child is trying out his/her new language and needs to be heard. Encourage your child to talk to you – sit beside him/her – they’ll find it easier to talk and listen to you if you’re not standing over them.

Feelings: Help them find the words to tell you how they are feeling, even if it takes time.

Explaining: If you have to say ‘no’, give your child a good reason and offer an alternative – “Rosie is playing with the doll now, let’s find you another toy”.

Involve your child: Where possible talk with them about the rules and what you expect from them. Be clear.

Discussion: As they get older discuss the setting of rules with them.

Tell them you love them, and show them by smiling, cuddling and kissing them. Tell them when you are cross, or when you are not happy with their behaviour. They need to realise that it’s the behaviour you don’t like and not them.
Tip 2: Play

If children are playing, they are less likely to be posting the remote control in the bin or wrestling with a brother or sister! If you’ve got a lot to do in a short space of time, set up an activity that will give you that all important extra half an hour:

Play is important and enjoyable, and children can learn a lot from it. Children need time to play on their own, with others and with their parents, as long as they play safely.

A few ideas for play might be:

- Painting, drawing and colouring: Children enjoy creating works of art and the messier the better!

- Water: A washing up bowl of water and a couple of cups or a plastic jug can keep a toddler busy for ages.

- Imagination: Get out some teddies and dolls and create a tea party, a zoo made up of all sizes and shapes of toys or arrange a ‘shop’, with some of the (unbreakable) contents of your kitchen cupboards – let their imagination run wild.

- Keep it simple: Try to keep a box of toys, crayons and play dough handy and make the most of bath time for playing with a couple of cups and a sponge.

- Join in: Once you’ve got everything out of the way, take five minutes to get into what your child is doing – show them that what they’re doing is important.
Tip 3: Understand changes as they grow

Children’s needs and understanding change as they grow, and what might be expected of a four-year-old can’t be expected of a two-year-old:

- Exploring: Young children find out about their world by touching, shaking, tasting, pouring, squeezing...the list is endless! This isn’t naughtiness, but a way of learning about their world. Make your home ‘toddler proof’ by storing valuables and breakables away from your child so they can explore safely. The mess of life with a toddler can be exhausting but think of all the learning they’re doing!

- Independence: Part of growing up for your child will be pushing against the boundaries and becoming an individual. You can help them by letting them do as much for themselves as possible – for young children, keep toys at a child’s height, let them dress and feed themselves.

- Encouragement: Your child will learn what’s ok to do from you, so give lots of praise and attention to good behaviour. If you only pay attention to your child when they misbehave, they’ll learn to misbehave to get your attention.
Tip 4: Set Boundaries

Children need clear rules, boundaries and routine.

- Be consistent.
- Parents need to agree the rules. It will help the child if both parents take the same approach.
- When you say no, mean no. Keeping to this can be hard work, but if you have a few clear rules, it helps you and your children.
- If you make promises keep them.
- Rules should be simple and clear.
- Keep to as few rules as possible.
- Try one new routine at a time and get it working before moving on to the next.
Tip 5: Reward and Notice Good Behaviour

Sometimes it is easy to ignore your child when they are behaving well, and only notice them when they are misbehaving. Children love their parents’ attention, and if they have to behave badly to get it, they will. Give them lots of praise when they are behaving well, rather than focussing on misbehaviour.

- Rewards do not have to be material things.
- Real praise and encouragement is the best reward as it can boost a child and build self-esteem and confidence.
- Try not to stress over the little things. If you are praising things they are doing well, and ignoring the small niggles, your child will learn that unacceptable behaviour no longer gets them the attention.
Tip 6: Build Self Confidence

Building your child’s self confidence will help them to try out new things, make friends and cope with the upsets and problems they meet as they grow up.

- Finding out: Give your child the chance to face new experiences and challenges with your support.

- Love: Tell your child that you love them; it’s great to smile, cuddle and kiss them.

- Independence: Don’t try to solve every problem for your child – sorting it out for themselves can be a boost to their confidence.

- Praise: As a general rule, try to give five times more praise than criticism.

- Avoid comparisons: All children are unique. Don’t compare your child to other children and share that with the child, they will grow up to compare themselves unfavourably with others.
Tip 7: Have Realistic Expectations and Allow Consequences

Children are children. They will be messy, noisy and, at times, disobedient.

- Give them the freedom to make mistakes.
- Encourage your child to think for themselves and take responsibility for their actions.

Tip 8: Deal with Meltdown Moments Positively

There will be difficult times for every family – usually when there’s too much to do in a short space of time, or when what you need to do, clashes with what your child wants to do.

Recognise Triggers

There might be some specific triggers or times when your child misbehaves. Be aware of these and try different approaches.

The morning rush

- “I try to get clothes out and make up their packed lunches the night before – it gives me a bit of extra time in the morning.”
- “Getting them to do a bit for themselves always helps, even if it’s just getting a bowl and a spoon. They feel like they’re helping and its one less thing for me to do.”
- “I get up before everyone and have five minutes on my own for a quick coffee each morning.”
Tips for Helping With Children’s Behaviour

At the supermarket checkout

- “I try and find something else to interest her before we get to the checkout – sometimes I even sing just to keep her from asking for sweets!”
- “When he’s sitting in the trolley I pass him things to put on the counter and he really likes that.”
- “We plan something ‘nice’ to do together after the shopping, as we shop, like watching a favourite DVD or going to the park.”

Playtime

- “I put his favourite toy away when other kids come round – it saves them fighting over it.”
- “If she’s really got herself upset, I try and take her somewhere else so she can calm down – she still has to know she can’t fight, but it’s better doing that somewhere quiet.”
Early evening to bedtime

- “When I get in from work, I try and have five minutes just for them – once I’ve heard about their day, it’s easier for them to let me get on and cook tea.”
- “We’ve just started giving him a five minute warning so he knows that he’s got a bit more time to play then it’s bedtime.”
- “We have a ‘bedtime routine’ of a bath, book and then bed.”

Other things you may wish to try:

- Distraction: For young children, try distracting their attention away from what you don’t want them to do.

- Time out: One alternative to physical punishment is to put your child in a dull but safe place for a period of time. The child should be of an age and ability to understand that they are to stay there until you tell them otherwise. The time limit should be one minute for every year of the child’s life.

- Withdraw privileges: For dealing with serious misbehaviour, try withdrawing privileges, for example, favourite programmes, playing with games, loss of pocket money, grounding etc.

- Be a role model: It is your responsibility to set an example for your child, by your own behaviour and attitude.
Tip 9: Look After Yourself

If you make sure you get a break to relax, this may help you cope better:

Try to:

- take time for yourself;
- keep interests outside the home;
- take up the offer of help from family and friends;
- get rest when you can;
- look after your health;
- know your limits;
- get together with other parents and their children – children also need company.
Tip 10: When Things Are Getting Difficult

- Stay calm.
- If it is impossible to stay calm, leave the child in a safe place and leave the room for a few minutes. This will give you breathing space to think.
- When you return, talk to your child about what has happened and how you will deal with it.
- Think about what happened, what set off the behaviour, has it happened before and what could be done differently?

- Ask for help and advice – nobody gets it right all the time.
- As a general rule, try and give five times more praise than criticism.
- Don’t try to change too much at once – take one tip and use it until you’ve worked it out and then try another.
- Flexibility is fine – life can be chaotic and having a flexible approach will help your children learn to do the same.

And Remember

The most important thing is that your child feels loved and happy even when sometimes things are difficult.
All families face challenges at some point. At these times, Family Support NI can help families find the support they need to help them address these challenges.

Family Support NI is a searchable online directory which provides a wide range of useful information not only to parents and families, but also to young people and front line staff. The directory contains details of a wide range of statutory, voluntary and community family support services throughout Northern Ireland, such as:

- Family Support Hubs;
- child contact centres;
- mental health services;
- disability support;
- domestic/sexual abuse;
- caring responsibilities;
- finance;
- housing.

www.familysupportni.gov.uk
Parents can easily search the directory using the name of an organisation, or they can find information about services to help with specific challenges. Each entry provides parents with a general overview of the organisation or service provider, as well as availability across NI and contact details.

Family Support NI also includes a public list of ALL registered childcare providers in Northern Ireland. A range of information is available about each provider to help parents to find childcare to meet their needs. This includes:

- vacancies;
- school pick-ups;
- experience of special needs;
- flexible working hours.

Parents using registered childcare listed on the site can also apply for help with childcare costs.
Comments

We would like to hear from you. We are interested in your views about this booklet.

- Have you found it helpful?
- What in particular has been of help/interest to you?
- What additional information should we consider making available?

Please forward your comments by post to:

‘Top Tips for Parents’
Family Policy Unit
Room A3.7
Castle Buildings
Stormont
Belfast
BT4 3SQ

or email: fcpadmin@health-ni.gov.uk

or tel: 028 9052 0530
This booklet has been produced by the Inter-departmental group on positive parenting.

The Group consisted of representatives from government departments and other organisations with an interest in children and families.

Permission has been given by the Family and Childcare Trust and the Welsh Assembly for the use of material included in this booklet.

Reprinted March 2018